We have followed Chick and Duckling from the farm to the fair, on sleigh rides and across Canada. Now Chick and Duckling are getting ready for a new adventure as they head to school in Carolyn j. Morris' 5th book, School Day. Exploring school through the eyes of Chick and Duckling, children will be able to identify and relate to the fun activities they see on each page. The adventuresome duo ride the bus and travel down the busy hallway before arriving at their classroom to play musical instruments, build with clay and play with new friends.

With fun rhymes and repetition on every page children of any age can join in the telling of the story. The lyrical text is once again paired with the beautiful illustrations by Richard McNaughton. The illustrations focusing on Chick and Duckling's grand adventure at school can encourage discussions about new experiences and the fun children will have at school!
